"LYTTON REPORT BRINGS NO RELIEF FROM FOREIGN OPPRESSION"

NUDIST GROUP LOSES FORCE IN HONG KONG

Membership Dwindles
To Four Men.

LEADER STILL HOPES.

The cult of the Nudist in Hong Kong is slowly dying and its active members have already decreased by half. Reaching a maximum figure of eight on September 4, when the first official outing was held, the number attending yesterday's outing was only four, while a similar number were present on September 26. Mr. H. E. Lanpart, the leader of the movement in the Colony is still hopeful, however, and declares that "they will come."

"What we want is the attendance of ladies, once they come the success of the Cult is assured," he declares. But the ladies stubbornly refuse to go in spite of the leader's personal calls at their residences, and his efforts to round them up each Sunday before the train leaves for Shatin have been so far unsuccessful.

The only active members who have participated in the outing up to the present have been Chinese youth. A Eurasian youth, who frankly stated that he had no interest in the movement except a curiosity to "see what it was like" has dropped from the ranks.

NEW SCHEME FOR STOCKS CONVERSION

Offer To Convert The N.S.W. Issue.

AMOUNTS TO £12,360,000.

London, To-day. An offer to convert £12,360,000 of New South Wales Five and three-quarters per cent. Stocks, falling due for repayment on November 1, into Commonwealth Three and a half per cent. Stock, at 97½, is expected early this year.

This financial movement, the source of which is not divulged, is likely to have popular appeal. The plan follows on the heels of the successful operation of the Treasury Department's War Loan Conversion Scheme. Conversion, it is believed, will be a simple matter and lift the responsibility for immediate retirement of the "credit" from the shoulders of the already-burdened Government of New South Wales. — Reuter.

The Chaplains' Cup was decided in two heats, eight boats competing in each. "C" Company, S.W.D., although passing the post first in the first heat, was disqualified in the second heat for an illegal start.

DETECTIVES STUMBLE ON DEATH CLUE

Reason For Murder Of Admiral Wu.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Shanghai, To-day.

International Settlement police, by a purely fortuitous circumstance, stumbled upon the solution of the recent cold-blooded murder of Admiral Wu Kwang-tung and have arrested four gunmen, three of whom have admitted complicity in the assassination.

They were hired for the purpose of putting Admiral Wu out of the way as he had enemies among an opium smuggling gang.

Discovery of the accused was made when detectives raided a lodging house, thinking they were trailing a group of kidnappers wanted in Hangchow and arrested two men. They later named another pair of accomplices, who were promptly apprehended.

Four Mauser automatics were found, two of which had barrels exactly matching those which fired the shots which killed Admiral Wu.

LA SALA GOES FREE ON BAIL AFTER REMAND

Case Not So Serious As First Appeared.

MAGISTRATE'S COMMENT.

After hearing the evidence of Major Lewis Cassel, in the Central Police Court this morning, Mr. Wynne-Jones granted bail in the sum of $1,000 to Pastor De La Sala, local manager of the Shamen Printing Press, who is also charged with threatening to assault Mr. Raymond O'Shea, editor of the Critic, and Major, Cassel, his colleague.

His Worship, in granting bail, said that he did not want to keep the accused locked up, as on the evidence given before him, the case was not so serious as he was given to understand at first.

Chief Detective-Inspector Reynolds, for the Police, intimated that La Sala had been in good humour, since he had been in Police custody. "I admit that although he has a violent temper, I think he appreciates the position," said the officer.

Major Cassel, who, in the course of his evidence, said he had never been frightened of any man, inquired if some order could be made to keep him away from the Critic office, or that he (Major Cassel) be allowed to carry a gun. The Court was assured of de La Sala's good behaviour.

Mr. D'Almeida remarked he thought the original charge had been brought under a wrong section. He thought that no warrant was necessary for the arrest of the accused, and that an ordinary summons for assault would have met the case.

His Worship agreed that the right charge would be one of threat to assault. He agreed also that the original charge had been misconceived, but said it was applicable to the case of Raymond O'Shea.

Mr. D'Almeida pointed out that leading newspapers, in attacking the case, tended to suggest that the case was a simple one.

The evidence of Major Cassel, in the course of his evidence, said he had never been frightened of any man, inquired if some order could be made to keep him away from the Critic office, or that he (Major Cassel) be allowed to carry a gun. The Court was assured of de La Sala's good behaviour.

COOL RECEPTION IN CHINA AND JAPAN

AMERICA UNOFFICIALLY APPROVES PLANS

SUGGESTED AUTONOMY FOR MANCHURIAN PEOPLE.

BRITISH PRESS COMMENT ALMOST WITHOUT EXCEPTION IS UNFAVOURABLE TO THE REPORT OF THE LYTTON COMMISSION AND THE SUGGESTIONS FOR SETTLING THE TROUBLED FAR EASTERN SITUATION. THOUGH CHINA'S CAPITAL IS SILENT, LOCAL OPINION WAS ANTAGONISTIC TOWARDS THE REPORT. THE SUGGESTION THAT MANCHURIA SHOULD BECOME A BUFFER STATE IS DISTASTEFUL TO CHINA.

Hong Kong Chinese are inclined to blame the Chinese, Japanese and Manchurian advisers of the Lytton Commission for the ineffectual quality of the report, at the same time maintaining that Lord Lytton has recognised their own contention that historically, geographically and in every other way, Manchuria belongs to China.

The American attitude, though reported unofficially, appears to support the Lytton Commission findings, while the French Press comment is lukewarm in its opposition.

"Report Leads Nowhere," London, To-day.

Apart from the Daily Herald (Labour) which argues that the Lytton Report finds Japan guilty on all counts, the tenor of the London Press comments is that the Lytton Report leads nowhere. But only one newspaper, the Daily Mail, says so in so many words.

The Daily Mail (Conservative) publication of Lord Rothermere, says that the Commission's constructive proposals involve years of negotiation and conferences and in the meantime Japan's presence in Manchuria is as natural and salutary as that of Britain in India or Egypt.

The Times wonders whether the Lytton Commission's proposals can practically or immediately be realised, though there is no difficulty in accepting the principles. The paper adds that the matter demands collective rather than national diplomatic action.

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) and the Morning Post (Independent Conservative) believe one of the most formidable obstacles in the way of settlement is the report's conclusion that a strong Central Government in China is primordial.

Le Journal pays tribute to Lord Lytton for holding an even balance between China and Japan and strongly approves the suggestion that China and Japan should settle the matter themselves, as the passions which divide them can only be accentuated by international action.

Le Petit Parisien and Le Matin believe the Commission's conclusions are already obsolete, as Japan cannot now withdraw her recognition of Manchuria. — Reuter.

RUSSIAN FORCES ON FRONTIER ALERT.

ANDACHAN IS OCCUPIED.

Harbin, To-day. Despatches received here reveal that a state of anarchy prevails in almost the whole section between Taitshai and Manchuria, on the right bank of the Chinese Eastern Railway. A large force of anti-Manchu troops has occupied Andachan, with the result that all communications east and west of Taitshai are cut off. At present no trains are running west of Harbin.

Japanese troops are reported to have occupied Andachan, with the result that all communications east and west of Taitshai are cut off. At present no trains are running west of Harbin.

SALVATION OF CHINA IN HER HANDS ALONE

Contradictory Findings
Of Commission.

MR. MA MAN-FAP'S VIEWS.

Prominent Chinese in Hong Kong hesitated to challenge the statements of the summarized Lytton Report to-day, with one or two notable exceptions. Mr. Ma Man-fai, manager of the Sincere Co., has sharp and thorough criticism for the document, however, and is outspoken in the matter.

"Any Chinese can be forgiven for considering the report a disappointing outcome of a lengthy research for which they have entertained such fervent hopes."

Mr. Ho Wing, J.P., proprietor of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corp. and Dr. S. W. Tso, O.B.E., LL.D., had no criticism to offer at least at this juncture.

Mr. Ma outlined his views to a "China Mail" representative.

"What is your general impression of the Lytton Report?"

"Personally, if I confess, no surprises for me. The summary throughout the whole nine chapters consists of nothing new. In the whole, it could be regarded as a collection of old news, but it certainly opens the eyes of the credulous few, if any of them still exist, that the final salvation will have to come from the Chinese themselves." Mr. Ma said.

"What do you think the outcome will be now that the report has been made public?"

"Judging by the previous experience at Geneva and taking into consideration the results of the 5 resolutions, such as those of September 30, October 18 and 24, and also the resolutions of November 16 and December 10, the Chinese could not be blamed if they are sceptical of any better results from the Lytton Commission. It served one purpose, that of convincing the world, if it need be convinced at all." (Continued on Page 4.)

Warm Colours Are Autumn's Choice Velvet And Corduroy Return To Vogue

TWEED RUNS TO CHECKS

It is going to be such a nice, cosy autumn; the colourings of woods and leaves, the textures of comfy little forest-animals and large, stupid, warm-soft sheep—these are what we are going to wear. But we are to be much neater than sheep or falling leaves in regard to outline, even for indoor wear. Nothing shaggy or left-about, but rather the Reveille touch—Reveille heard in the distance across water, perhaps, but distinctly carrying on the cantonment tradition of this summer's outdoor clothes.

Part of the cosiness is in the return of velvet and corduroy. The game-keeperly kind (the soft sorts can be considered another time) that suggests the moors, and long walks when the dusk smells sharply of oak-trees, and the weather can turn with bared teeth upon you without causing the smallest falter in the conversation. Tweed, so far as one can see, need never fear a rival when the Twelfth arrives, and for five months afterwards; it is undoubtedly king of the English countryside, as well as of its kingdom north of its sponsor river. But, unlike some absolute monarchs, it is large-minded and sapient enough to allow a few pretenders round the throne. Such as Corduroy, mixed or cotton; velveteen, cords, artificial silk cords, shower-proof corded velvet, rayon velvet, washing velvet, and a good few more variations on the same theme.

All these are being produced in wide ranges of colours, but they are not very easily turned out. Mass-production itself cannot hurry up certain processes, and people who want to wear velvet should see about it in good time. It takes several months to make good velvet corduroy, and the most delighted manufacturer, glowing over orders, cannot fulfil them in less time than it takes to produce. Q. E. D. Some of the fancy designs are even longer in the making, but for moor wear the plain stripes suffice, and not all of the eighteen fashionable shades are wanted; not, at least, if one consults the keeper's feelings.

THE CHECKS.

Nor for the matter of that, are some of the checks with which tweed is disporting itself while all this cording goes on among the velvets. A bold check is very smart, and it certainly does, as claimed for it, give distinction to a suit of simple outline; but it is not just what is wanted, especially in black and white as at present ordained, when one is walking over a heather-mixed moor in search of birds most strictly on the look-out. And who that has ever heard him speak in peace would wish to make a gillie roll his R's in anger? It will be better to keep to what the trade rightly describes as "more discreet" herring-bones and diagonals.

Both for corduroy's and tweeds (both preeminently British products, and in their domain ruling the world's markets, it is pleasant to know) the outline is simple. The collar can be upstanding or with revers, the skirt pleated or flared, the waist certainly fitting, but with or without belt; but the general outline of the autumn dress, even for afternoon wear far away from any grouse until it be roasted, is neatness, neatness, neatness.

THE TROUSER SKIRT.

The trouser skirt is having quite a good try-out, sometimes entirely disguised by a pseudo-panel, sometimes half-avowed, and sometimes frankly a garment for a biped, though not suitable for tea at the Rectory. The wrap effect is so far the favourite in what may be called the trouser-skirt. It is certainly very comfortable, and is only open to the reproach of being a compromise. After all, when the battle of the riding-habit has been won and lost, and the beaches of Deauville and Socotra alike proclaim that Mrs. Noah's figure was a misapprehension, it seems unnecessary to leave unbifurcated the shooting-suit. Besides, attention is for the moment concentrated upon the manly chest, so let the attractive young tweeduroys stride forth as they will. Let us let them, for they certainly will.

Showerproof velvet is one of the benefits bestowed upon the modern woman by the Industrial Revolution. Steam, Faraday, and a few other headings in which she takes no interest. Velvet used to be velvet, and rain rain, and when the twain happened to meet, the result was, quite simply, spots. Now we put on velvet because it seems likely to rain, or even when it seems unlikely to stop. It is on record that a devout old cottage lady said to her visiting vicar, after she had been studying the thousands of differently-graded ladies who formed King Solomon's household: "O, what privileges these lady Christians had!" Well, these lady Christians have privileges,

BLUE FROCKS FOR EVENINGS.

Black Is Not So Popular.

Most of the summer evening frocks, worth commenting on are blue, the deep, serviceable shades being the most popular. Pastel colours are next best, but black is not so popular as it has been.

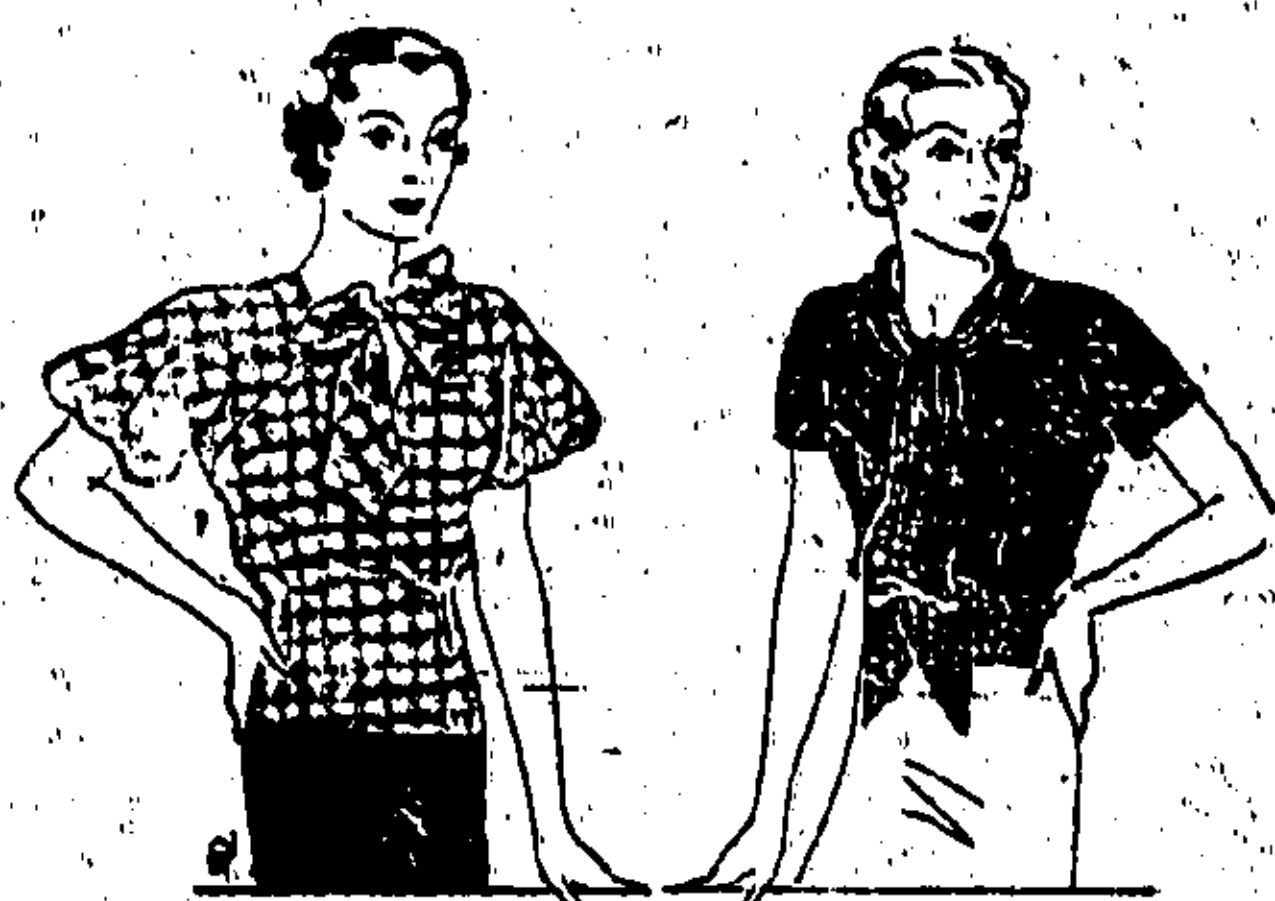

In fact, after the clear pastel tints follow greens with a little pink in them, and greys with hints of green. Magenta takes next place, and, after that, vivid rose. But, if you are confused by the merits of so many different colours, make up your mind to wear white. White can be worn with an air of exaltation. Indeed, the hotter the night, the more glorious the frock.

THE NEW GAITER.

There is a new gaiter. There are objections to the Wellington, even other than those the Iron Duke would have voiced in no uncertain terms if he had been asked to indicate his ankle in soft leather when booting himself for the field. The Wellington, when worn with short skirts, lets in rain and traps it in irrevocable depths. Short skirts being now numbered among those battles long ago which are near-off things, the Wellington is found prying among their hems, sticking them out, catching in them, and generally making itself a nuisance. Hence the new fold-up gaiter, complete with pretty silken case that goes flat in the handbag, zipping up the back of the leg, and covering the ankle, the top of the shoe, and half the calf. This is the invention of an Englishwoman who has been watching over the welfare of British workers for years, and found that neither the high boot nor the ordinary gaiter met the exigencies (financial and hygienic) of either the high boot or the ordinary gaiter. It allows the use of ordinary shoes, so much more comfortable for day long wear than boots, and is much more supple than gaiters.

As for hats for the early autumn, they must be stitched. Take the stitching out where liked: inside the semi-vagabond brim, round the upturned doughboy rim, down from crown in wide-spaced or numerous seams, but for goodness sake have it stitched. Every stitch you take now saves a new hat nine weeks hence. A very small feather may appear at the side, plastered well against the crown. But it is more in the tradition of both the cautious and the smart to start out unadorned. The feather can always be added by the first bird somebody else may happen to graze in its flight.

BETTER MILK FOR BABIES

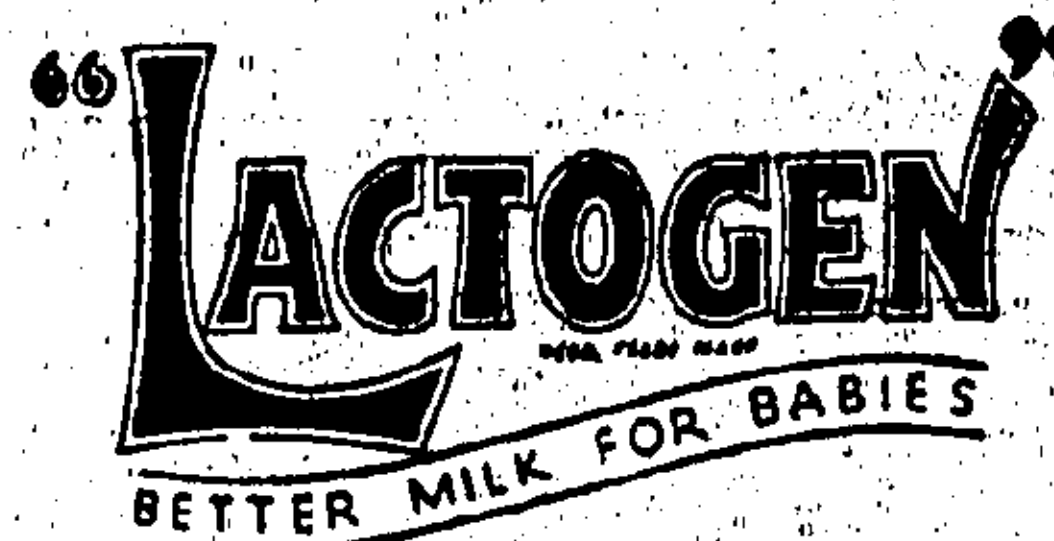

Give your baby LACTOGEN

Isn't Baby getting on? Look, he's beginning to notice. He's so happy, too—crooms and gurgles all the time he's awake. Mother now has an easy mind about these all important early days, for Baby is thriving splendidly on Lactogen.

Lactogen is pure, fresh milk with extra cream and natural milk sugar added, dried by the Lactogen process and made as digestible, and in all other important respects as like natural breast milk as can be.

Lactogen contains all the vitamins of raw milk. Lactogen is a complete food for Baby; a perfectly balanced diet which provides in correct forms and proportions all the food elements and mineral salts Baby needs to develop a sound digestive system—a sturdy frame with good dense bone—the foundation of sound teeth—firm muscles—steady nerves—and a vigorous constitution. Doctors and Nurses now say whenever bottle feeding is advisable, "Put Baby on Lactogen."

Unfortunate Major A Lucky Author

Two Works Picked By The Book Society

[By J. B. Priestly.]

Major Yeats-Brown was not always fortunate as a soldier—as we shall presently see—but he has been very lucky as an author. Two years ago, his "Bengal Lancer" was chosen by the Book Society, and by this time must have reached a very large sale indeed. Now his new book, "Golden Horn," has been chosen by the Book Society. He is, I think, the only author who figures twice among this society's choices. Does he deserve this honour?

It is impossible not to compare the two books. Is "Golden Horn" as good as "Bengal Lancer"? The answer is—Certainly not. I cannot understand those reviewers who have declared that it is. Because I wish the author well, I feel that it would be a crime to leave him with the idea that his new book is another "Bengal Lancer." It is distinctly inferior.

"Bengal Lancer" seemed to me to have an almost magical charm. I still cannot understand how certain publishers came to refuse the manuscript. (As they did—to their subsequent chagrin.) To begin with, the early chapters plucked Indian Army life out of the morass of dull prose into which it had been plunged for years, and made it all fresh and vivid again. Then there was something fascinating about the writer himself, with his odd mixture of the cavalry subaltern and the born mystic, polo and Yoga, pig-sticking and deep-breathing exercises. He was a genuine character—of a very rum English kind—revealing himself very frankly in excellent descriptive prose. I feel it will be many a year before people have done with the "Bengal Lancer." I should like to read it all over again, this very night.

Not A Dull Book.

On the other hand, I feel sure I shall not want to read "Golden Horn" again. It is not a bad book, and it is certainly not a dull one. But, judging it by the standard the author himself would prefer, I cannot call it a good one. It is well worth reading, but I cannot help feeling that it would have been better for Major Yeats-Brown, for the proud author of "Bengal Lancer," if he had not written this new book.

The shape of it is awkward. The first third is not autobiography at all, but an account of the growth of the Young Turks, or, if you will, a political history of Turkey from 1908 to 1914. Much of it is presented in a way I rather dislike, in that ultradramatic and detailed manner which compels the historian to give you the intimate actions and thoughts of personages he never knew. Thus, we begin by finding ourselves in a small private apartment with the Sultan Abdul Hamid. But the scene that follows cannot be history, and its author is not offering us a novel. True, the stuff is sufficiently vivid and dramatic, but nevertheless it is a fake.

So much for the first third. After that, and for the remainder of the book, we get autobiography, for the author, who was an Air Force observer, was taken prisoner in Iraq by the Turks. He describes his life in various prisons and his attempts to escape, and throughout this part of the book he has made considerable use of matter already in print. Just after the war, he wrote a little book describing his adventures as a prisoner of the Turks. This book had a very small sale, and so he felt justified in using material from it to complete this new book.

This raises a pretty little problem in literary ethics. Was Major Yeats-Brown justified in stealing from himself in this way? I can understand his position. Thirteen years ago, when he had no literary reputation, his book about escaping from the Turks sold for a large and eager public, and he feels entitled to give them matter from that older book of which most of them have never even heard. Nevertheless, I think it will not do.

Turkish Plots. He ought to have persuaded his publisher—who would certainly have agreed—to reprint that older book, possibly after a thorough revision. Then if his interest in Turkey had not evaporated, he could have given us a separate volume on recent Turkish history. But this present book is described on the jacket as "Plot and Counterplot in Turkey, 1908-1918, as seen from the inside by a prisoner of war."

And I maintain that this is a very inaccurate description. The first third describes plots and counterplots in Turkey, but the author was not there; he is simply writing history of a kind. The remaining two-thirds only deal with the author's own plots—to escape—and not with the elaborations of Turkish war politics. Whether regarded, then, as history or autobiography, the book is unsatisfactory, and is not quite what it is supposed to be.

All this, of course, does not affect the book's quality simply as so much good reading matter. The writing is as vivid as ever, and the writer's odd personality is there. He is still ready to break off at any place in the narrative to mention the curious exercises he learned among the Indian mystics, so that one might say that the colon is almost his favourite stop. He is a very frank writer, and as the adventures of a prisoner of war in the Near East provide a chronicle with great opportunities for frankness, the very squeamish reader had better be careful.

Actually, I must confess, there is a certain gusto in the way in which he records some details of filth and horror, and, as I admire the author, I wish that gusto were not there. And I shall be terribly disappointed if he does not soon give us a better book than "Golden Horn."

Victorian Atmosphere.

There are many small country towns near the South Coast that keep, in spite of having their fair share of cars, motor-coaches, petrol stations, cinemas, and soda-fountains, more than a trace of a Victorian atmosphere. I think that Mr. Frank Swinnerton, having looked at one of these towns, and having made up his mind to write a novel about it, determined that the tale should be cast in a Victorian mould.

Not only should it have characters, heroic, villainous, comic, observed and described in the old-fashioned way; not only should it have a love story with a good regulation happy ending; but it should also have a definite plot, of a sound 1860-1880 vintage, with lost willis in it. The result is a novel of our time that suggests a pastiche of the later Victorian novel, like one of Trollope's minor fictions.

Naturally, a great deal of it could only have been written this year, and Mr. Swinnerton still retains his own neat, efficient, rather dry manner, of which the following is fairly typical:

"The room she entered was unfortunately no more enlivening for the Holpens were moderns who believed in an absence of clutter. And while the absence of clutter is admirably hygienic, there can be no doubt that the frigidly furnished house is intended for a homeless generation. When (if ever) homes again become popular, clutter will return. Here, before Lettice, all was select. The very books upon those severe bookshelves had cold winds blowing through them, and were present as miniature lozenges in the larger design. All was cordial as an empty classroom."

It makes good sense, but it is not the sort of thing that one can read with pleasure. This novel of what a house (assisted by an ingenious plotter) can do to people is, however, a very good one. It is not thinking of people, but of the house, and the house is a very good one. It is not thinking of people, but of the house, and the house is a very good one. It is not thinking of people, but of the house, and the house is a very good one.

"THE WINTER'S TALE" FOR THE STAGE.

Charles B. Cochran
Plans Production.

ANOTHER OF COWARD'S.

Mr. Charles B. Cochran is planning a production of "The Winter's Tale" this autumn, with costumes and scenery by Mr. Oliver Messel, who was responsible for the designs for "Helen." "No definite arrangements have been made with Mr. Messel," he told me, but I wrote making him an offer.

"I have just returned from a short holiday in Dieppe," Mr. Cochran said, "and while I was away I read 'The Winter's Tale' again. It has always been one of my favourite comedies, and I realised how admirably it suited the genius of Mr. Messel. I expect to produce the play first at the Opera House, Manchester, then in Glasgow, and later in London."

"The Winter's Tale" was last produced for a run in London at the Savoy, in September, 1923, with Mr. Henry Ainley as Leontes, the late Mr. Dennis Neilson-Terry as Florizel, and Miss Lillah McCarthy as Hermione.

"Words And Music."

Rehearsals have been completed for Mr. Noel Coward's new revue, "Words and Music," which is to be presented in Manchester and London. The episodes are all modern, and there is to be a cast of thirty principals with a chorus of thirty. Some time this year Mr. Cochran intends to make a visit to America, but although he has had several offers he has made no plans for productions in New York. "Before I make any decisions I want to look round and see what is happening there," he said.

At Christmas he intends to stage another musical play, possibly "The Brigands," with a new book by Mr. A. P. Herbert, or in another Offenbach operetta.

"The Captain's Table" Is One Of Author's Annual Books

If one spoke of Mr. Huddleston's annual book it might be an injustice, perhaps, on the side of understatement. He has regaled us in some thirty volumes on almost every aspect of national character in regard to England, France, and the United States and there is no reason why he should not keep us entertained on some such lines until the end.

This time, however, he has taken the broad Atlantic into his purview, and endeavoured to give us the social stir and movement of a big Transatlantic liner in full play.

In a welter of miscellaneous character such as one might expect there is only one episode, and this is of the Artemus Ward description, for a Polish woman in the steerage increases the census by a unit, and makes that hapless waif the centre of universal interest. But there is plenty of contrast in acute juxtaposition. Even the note of worldly irony finds expression in the mouth of a pugilist's manager, who winds up his tirade with an outburst that may stand as an apologue on the emptiness of fame:

"I'm not denying that the Kid hasn't got natural talent. He has. But if he hadn't been brought up properly, he'd be fighting for five dollars. I'm his benefactor. If you only knew the tricks of this trade. Who told him when he should win and when he should lose? Me. Who fixed it so that he should win when he had to? Me. Who kept him off the women and kept him down to weight? Me. Who made his contracts and led him on and built him up, and got him his publicity? Me. We're the fellows who do it all. He's just a tool."

This ambition to write up a voyage round a ship must have occurred to many a writer, and any such experiment will always have a model—old-fashioned, may be, in De Maistre's "Voyage Autour de la Chambre." Unfortunately, his sensibility is what Mr. Huddleston lacks. He has the glitter of the salon and the restaurant, without the glow and twilight of the riverside. So when we expect romance, we get a bookful of roccoco vivacity, and, instead of a fascinating "movie," the result is only a "talkie" after all. There are some lively characters, well differentiated and brought fiercely up to date, and there are some cool reflective intervals.

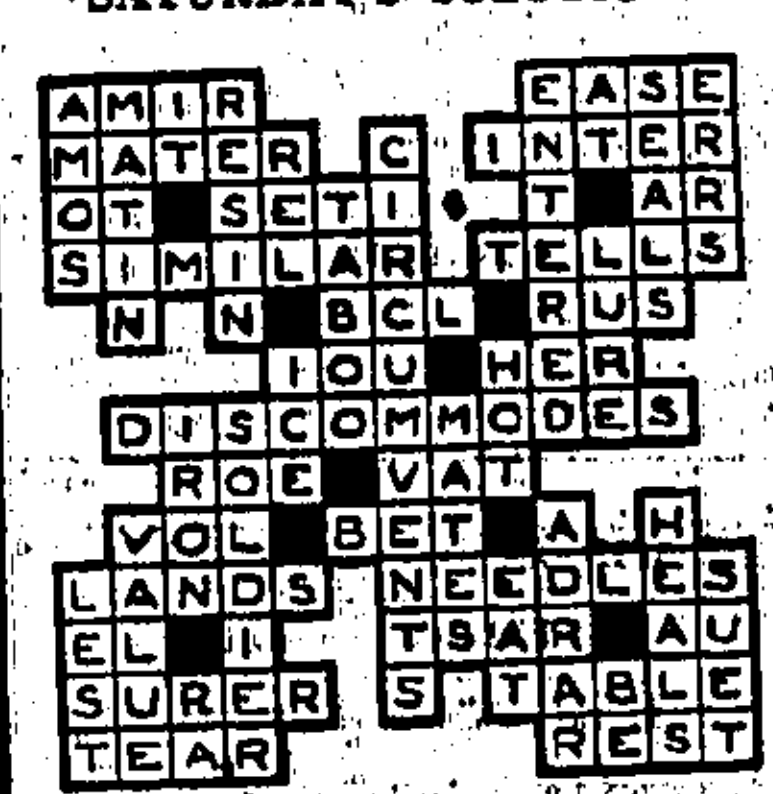

"CHANGE" IS REVIEW OF ETON LIFE

In time for the match at Lord's to-day there appears a review of Eton during the last hundred years called "Change," published at 2s. "Its objects," the editors state, "is to give the Etonians of 1932 some idea of the greatness and strangeness of their heritage." To others it will certainly provide some clue to the unique attraction of Eton.

The review consists of a series of anecdotal articles by a distinguished band of Old Etonians—General to Earl of Cavan, Mr. Desmond MacCarthy, the Hon. J. J. Astor, Mr. Maurice Baring, and the Marquis of Donegal among others—dealing with Eton, life, and personalities. It has been brought into being by the efforts of present members of Eton, and is admirably printed and illustrated.

To those who ask, Have there been major changes during the last hundred years, this delightful compilation supplies the answer. The little things alter perpetually—no longer does the Etonian go "up town," or drink "ades," at Little Brown's on his return, or personally carve his name in Upper School. But the big things remain the same.

COLONY HEARS BAND OF ARGYLLS.

Large Audience At The Peninsula.

VARIED PROGRAMME.

Before a rapt audience in the Peninsula Hotel lounge last night, the band of the 2nd Battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, led by Bandmaster Mr. C. F. Beat, A.R.C.M., presented one of the finest concerts the Colony has ever heard. With scarlet coats, the plaid and the kilt, the 24 bandmen were most picturesque. Occupying the space nearest the main entrance, their music floated out into the night and stopped pedestrians, who listened, thrilling.

It would be invidious to discriminate as to the reception of pieces. All were rendered equally well.

The programme commenced with a stirring march, "The Thin Red Line," by Alfred, and finished with the Regimental March, "In the Garb of Auld Gail."

Saving the best until the last, the audience greeted Pipe Major Sinclair's playing of three selections with loud applause. "The Pathan," "Thou Last Left Me Ever, Jimmie," and "The Black Bear" being his choice. With the orchestra accompanying, the piper played with inspiration, the wild notes throbbing, the lament a wail.

Some of the officers and ladies present were: Lt.-Com. F. H. F. Skryme, Lt. Keith Murray, Capt. R. G. Moir, Lt. J. H. G. Black, Capt. R. C. B. Anderson, Map. W. G. Campbell, Lt.-Col. N. C. Bennett, Comm. and Mrs. D. R. Brodiebank, Capt. and Mrs. D. J. Grant, Capt. C. D. Wales, Capt. V. C. Branson and Capt. W. H. G. Goster.

Menacing With Revolver And Daggers.

A week's formal remand was granted to Inspector Rossby by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning, when the Inspector brought the case of Sin Lau-cheuk, aged 30, who is accused of an armed robbery, before the Magistrate.

The accused is said to have had in his possession one revolver and two daggers and endangered the lives of Chan Hay; Pun Yuet-ying and Lee Sze-mui of 147, Wanchai Road, first floor.

By menacing them with his weapons, he is alleged to have taken $539.60 in money from them and jewellery and watches to the amount of $261. The total value was placed at $800.60.

Officers Tried To Frame Templeton, Youth's Self-styled Sweetheart Says

San Jose, Calif., Sept. 29. Claire Burnette, pretty onetime self-styled sweetheart of George Douglas Templeton, Jr., took the stand to-day at the youth's murder trial and repudiated her previous signed statement that Templeton had asked her to establish an alibi. The blonde girl declared that sheriff's officers urged her to tell "a good and bloody story so they could hang Douglas," the former Manila youth on trial for the slaying of his aunt, Mrs. William R. Babcock.

Miss Burnette, called as a prosecution witness, was originally quoted after the crime last July 25, as saying Templeton "came to her room after the slaying," told her of the crime and demanded that she provide him with an alibi. She testified to-day that a deputy sheriff persuaded her to sign the statement that Templeton confessed to the crime. She said she was not a party to the crime and that she was not a party to the crime.

Cool Reception To Lytton Report

In regard to the Report's recommendations, it is felt Japan will not consent to the withdrawal of all her armed forces in Manchuria other than the Gendarmerie, or to a complete modification of the present regime in Manchuria so as to bring a new measure of autonomy within sovereignty and administrative integrity of China. On the other hand, the Chinese objections to any direct negotiations with the Japanese, as recommended by the Commission in the shape of an advisory conference, may disappear as the scope of negotiations is so clearly defined. — Reuter.

Paris, To-day.

The initial comments on the Lytton Report here are cautious and lukewarm. La Liberté says the report is not likely to solve the problem and not likely to raise the League of Nations prestige.

Le Journal des Debats compliments the Commission on its conscientiousness and believes the Commission's mistake is that while acknowledging the inevitableness of a Manchukuo state, it wishes apparently to modify its status. It considers it most unlikely that Manchukuoans will participate in the proposed conference if their independence is called in question. — Reuter.

CHINA PONDERS POLICY ON REPORT.

Political circles here were informed to-day that word had gone forth from the seat of China's Government calling all members of the Central Executive Council to a conference at which would be determined the nation's attitude towards the Lytton Report and the policy to be adopted in consequence of the League Commission's recommendations.

That a critical stage has been reached in the affairs of the nation, relative to the northern provinces, is admitted. The suggestion for autonomy in Manchuria is expected to meet with opposition.

Since the publication of the Lytton Report, translators have been busy in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, but their labours are not expected to be completed outside three or four days.

Meanwhile, Dr. Lo Wen-kan, Foreign Minister, is carefully studying the text in his hands.

To-morrow the Executive Yuan will notify all Ministers to attend the discussion to be held by the Central Government, the date of which will be announced at once, but which has not been definitely fixed.

The opinions of all Nanking leaders are being gathered to facilitate the expression of China's attitude towards the report.

Watching Japan. China, of course, is watching the Tokyo Government in order to obtain its reaction to the Lytton Report. It is felt that the Japanese attitude will have much to do with determining the stand the Central Government will take.

The Report. In substance, the Lytton Report

port urges a virtual autonomy in the Northern Provinces, the protection of China's rights there, the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Manchuria and revision of Treaties between China and Japan.

The Commission recommends the establishment of an autonomous state in Manchuria, without depriving China of her rights there. Sharing of tax revenue by the Chinese Government and the Manchurian administration is suggested. The state, it is urged, would act as a sort of "buffer."

Direct negotiation between China and Japan and foreign intervention to stabilize the Chinese Government, if necessary, are also urged as steps to a safe conclusion of the Far Eastern dispute.

Review Of Report.

Shanghai, To-day. After seven thousand words, debating the rights and wrongs of China and Japan and the events in Manchuria prior to September 18 last year, and the Manchukuo, Shanghai and Tientsin events since that date, the summary of the Lytton Report outlines the general principles to which any satisfactory solution should conform, namely:—

1.—That both China and Japan, as members of the League, are entitled to claim the same consideration "A" solution from which both did not derive benefit would not be a gain to the cause of peace.

2.—That to make peace between two neighbouring countries without regard for the interests of a third (Russia) would be neither just, wise, nor in the interests of peace.

3.—Any solution should conform with the provisions of the League Covenant, the Paris Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty.

4.—The rights and interests of Japan in Manchuria cannot be ignored, any solution which failed to recognise them and take into account also Japan's historical associations therewith, would not be satisfactory.

Revision Required. 5.—A restatement of the respective rights, interests and responsibilities of both countries in Manchuria in new treaties (which shall be part of the settlement agreement) is desirable if future friction is to be avoided and mutual confidence and co-operation restored.

6.—As a corollary, it is necessary that provision should be made for facilitating the prompt settlement of minor disputes as they arise.

7.—The Government of Manchuria should be modified to secure, consistently with the sovereignty and administrative integrity of China, a large measure of autonomy, designed to meet local conditions and the special characteristics of the Three Eastern Provinces. The new civil regime must be so constituted and conducted as to satisfy the essential requirements of good Government.

Troops Must Withdraw. 8.—The internal order of Manchuria should be secured by an effective local gendarmerie force, and security against external aggression should be provided by the withdrawal of all armed forces other than the gendarmerie and by the conclusion of a treaty of non-aggression between the countries interested.

9.—For the purpose of the encouragement of the Sino-Japanese economic rapprochement, a new commercial treaty between the two is desirable. The treaty should aim at placing Sino-Japanese commercial relations on an equitable basis and bringing them into conformity with their improved political relations.

Asks Co-operation. 10.—Since the present political instability in China is an obstacle to friendship with Japan and an anxiety to the rest of the world, as the maintenance of peace in the Far East is a matter of international concern, and since the conditions enumerated above cannot be fulfilled without a strong central Government in China, the final requisite for a satisfactory solution is temporary international co-operation in the form of a conference of the three Eastern Provinces.

It is suggested that the conference might consist of a Chinese representative and two delegations representing the local population, one to be selected in the manner prescribed by the Chinese Government and one in the same way by the Japanese Government. It agreed to the conference might secure the assistance of neutral observers. Any unagreed points would be submitted to the League Council simultaneously, and the Sino-Japanese issues should be discussed separately.

The Commission suggests that the results of these discussions and negotiations should be embodied in four separate instruments, as follows:—

1.—A declaration by the Chinese Government, constituting a special administration for the Three Eastern Provinces in the terms recommended by the advisory conference.

2.—A Sino-Japanese treaty dealing with Japan's interests.

3.—A Sino-Japanese treaty of conciliation, arbitration, non-aggression and mutual assistance.

4.—A Sino-Japanese commercial treaty.

Foreign Advisers. The Commission then indicates the form in which the four above-mentioned instruments might be put and various points which they might settle. The declaration would deal with such questions as the powers reserved to the Chinese Government in Manchuria, the organization of a gendarmerie force and the appointment of foreign advisers in Manchuria.

It is suggested that the powers reserved to the Central Government should be:—

1.—Control of general Treaty and foreign relations, not otherwise provided for, it being understood that the Central Government would not enter into any international engagements inconsistent with the terms of the declaration.

2.—Control of the Customs, Post Office, Salt Gabelle, and possibly the administration of stamp duty and wine and tobacco taxes, the advisory conference determining an equitable division of the net income on those revenues between the Central Government and the Three Eastern Provinces.

3.—The power of Appointment (at least in the first instance) of the Chief Executive of the Government of the Three Eastern Provinces, in accordance with the procedure laid down in the declaration. Vacancies would be filled in the same way by some system of selection in the Three Eastern Provinces, to be agreed to by the advisory conference and inserted in the declaration.

4.—The power of issuing to the Chief Executive of the Three Eastern Provinces such instructions as might be necessary to ensure the carrying out of international engagements entered into by the Central Government of China in matters under the administration of the autonomous Government of the Three Eastern Provinces.

body these ideas, China and Japan would have achieved a solution of their difficulties, which might be made the starting-point of a new era of close understanding and political co-operation. If such a rapprochement is not secured, no solution can be really fruitful.

The Commission then suggests that if China and Japan agree to discuss a solution along the lines indicated, an advisory conference might be summoned as soon as possible, for the purpose of recommending detailed proposals for the constitution of a special regime for the administration of the Three Eastern Provinces.

Neutrals to Assist. It is suggested that the conference might consist of a Chinese representative and two delegations representing the local population, one to be selected in the manner prescribed by the Chinese Government and one in the same way by the Japanese Government. It agreed to the conference might secure the assistance of neutral observers. Any unagreed points would be submitted to the League Council simultaneously, and the Sino-Japanese issues should be discussed separately.

2.—A Sino-Japanese treaty dealing with Japan's interests.

3.—A Sino-Japanese treaty of conciliation, arbitration, non-aggression and mutual assistance.

4.—A Sino-Japanese commercial treaty.

Simple Programme. The ground at Lock Pick Sheung still remains in its native state, and Mr. Lanepart's ambitious programme of development is for the time being shelved. The activities yesterday, as on previous occasions, consisted of a dip in the swimming hole, and several hours of sun-bathing. With the coming of the cooler season, they form the future outings will take is questionable.

The villagers in the vicinity of the camping ground still take a casual interest in the movement and a juvenile gallery assembled on an adjoining hill each Sunday to witness the proceedings. It was anticipated shortly after the first meeting of the cult that the village elders from the Lock Pick Sheung district would lodge a complaint about the matter, but nothing has been done. The village is not concerned. Hong Kong authorities are no longer much interested.

The outings are held each Sunday, the members leaving Kowloon on the 1.18 p.m. train, and returning from Shatin at 7.30 p.m., allowing practically five hours at the camping ground.

LINCOLNSHIRE ARRIVE TO-DAY

An advance party of the Lincolnshires, under Major J. A. A. Griffin, D.S.O., arrived last week in Hong Kong in H.M.S. Keppel. Major E. H. Impey, M.C., has remained in Shanghai in charge of the rear party.

The Lincolnshires left Shanghai on Saturday morning after a rousing send off. The battalion paraded on Friday afternoon, prior to the departure, at Kiachow Road, when they were inspected by Brigadier Fleming. Afterwards they marched to the Bund, the band of the East Lancashire Regiment and the Wiltshire Regiment playing the men down to the ship.

One of the oldest in the British Army, the Lincolnshire Regiment, was raised in 1685, and called the Earl of Bath's Regiment of Foot. They first saw service in the Low Countries under Marlborough in the campaigns which commenced in 1704. In 1871, the four companies and the Band and Drummers of the Lincolnshire Regiment came to Hong Kong from Yokohama, the rest going to Singapore.

"TARZAN, THE APE MAN"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

In response to many requests, the managements of the Queen's Theatre are re-screening W. S. Van Dyke's wonderful jungle film "Tarzan, the Ape Man." Johnny Weissmuller, the world's champion swimmer, does good work in the role of Tarzan, to which he is ideally suited.

Maureen O'Sullivan has the feminine lead, while the supporting cast includes Neil Hamilton, and C. Aubrey Smith. For those who have not yet seen this production, here's another chance!

MAIL REVIEW

"MERRILY WE GO TO HELL"—KING'S THEATRE.

Sylvia Sydney and Fredric March are the featured leading players in "Merrily We Go To Hell," Fox's dramatised version of Cleo Lucas' popular novel "I, Jerry, take thee, Joan." Edwin Justus Mayer directed.

March is seen as a brilliant, but irresponsible newspaper reporter, who falls in love with Miss Sydney, the daughter of wealthy parents. She marries him, in spite of family objections. She then finds that she has to check her own headstrong course to keep her husband from utter dissolution. March loses his job, but is successful with a play. He celebrates so disgracefully that she leaves him. Adrienne Allen, a former college sweetheart, being one reason.

The simple story is made realistic through good acting on the part of all concerned. March, who rose to stellar heights in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is admirable. Recommended!

MAIL REVIEW

"OVER THE HILL"—ORIENTAL THEATRE.

James Dunn and Sally Eilers, the love team of "Bad Girl" are starred in Fox's production "Over the Hill," the current attraction at the Oriental Theatre. Although it is the film's third local release, it is, nevertheless, well worth seeing.

A human plot rings through the story of a mother who sacrifices all for her sons. When they are grown up men, only one, Dunn, has love for the aged mother. Another son, played by Edward Cranford, is very religious in his young days, but turns his mother to the workhouse later. James Kirkwood does good work as the father.

MAIL REVIEW

"BEYOND VICTORY"—GARDEN THEATRE.

On its third local release, RKO's great war drama "Beyond Victory" is the current attraction at the Garden Theatre, at Wanchai. Bill Boyd and Marian Shilling appear opposite each other in the leading roles. There are many exciting scenes in this production.

MAIL REVIEW

"COCK OF THE AIR"—CENTRAL THEATRE.

Unlike his gentleman crook roles, Chester Morris, is seen as a romantic young aviator in Howard Hughes' special production "Cock of the Air" now playing at the Central Theatre, where it is having its initial screening locally.

Billie Dove, filmdom's most beautiful woman, is seen opposite Morris, who portrays the role of a young and dashing American aviator, and acquires himself with credit. He gives the finest performance of his career.

Matt Moore, Walter Catlett and Yola D'Avril appear in support. Recommended!

"CAUGHT CHEATING"—MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Charlie Murray and George Sidney, the imitable comedy pair, whose appearance together on the screen always spells laughter, embark on a "stepping out" trip in their latest comedy hit "Caught Cheating" now playing at the Majestic Theatre. Both fall for two pretty gold-diggers, and the result is—loads of laughter!

Autonomous Control. All other powers would be vested in the autonomous Government of the Three Eastern Provinces.

It is suggested that a special gendarmerie should be organised with the collaboration of foreign instructors, "which would be the only armed force within the Three Eastern Provinces." Its organisation when completed, should be followed by the retirement from this territory of all other armed forces, including any special bodies of police or railway guards, whether Chinese or Japanese.

The Report states that the Sino-Japanese Treaty dealing with Japanese interests would have to deal principally with certain economic rights of Japanese nationals, and the railway questions, Treaties and aims should be kept free of participation by Japan in the economic development of Manchuria, which would not carry with it the right to control the country, either economically or politically.

2.—The continuance in Jehol of such rights as Japan now enjoys.

3.—The extension to the whole of Manchuria of the right to settle and lease land, coupled with some modification of the principle of "extraterritoriality."

4.—An agreement regarding the operation of the railways.

Conciliation Body.

The Sino-Japanese Treaty of conciliation, arbitration, non-aggression and mutual co-operation would provide for a Board of Conciliation and an Arbitration Tribunal. The contracting parties should also agree that Manchuria should gradually become a demilitarised zone, for which it would be provided that after the organisation of the gendarmerie had been effected, any violation of the demilitarised territory by either or a third party would constitute an act of aggression, entitling the other (or both in the event of a third party attack) to take whatever measures they deemed advisable to defend the territory without prejudice of the League Council's right to take action under the Covenant. If the Soviet Government desired to participate in the latter agreement, appropriate clauses could be embodied in a separate three-party agreement.

The object of the Sino-Japanese commercial treaty would be the establishment of conditions to encourage as much as possible the exchange of Chinese and Japanese goods, while safeguarding the existing Treaty rights of the other countries. The Treaty should contain an undertaking by the Chinese Government to take all measures in its power to forbid and repress boycott movements against Japanese trade without prejudice against the individual rights of Chinese consumers.

The summary concludes by saying that these suggestions and considerations submitted by the Commission to the League Council are essential, and that negotiations should be begun as soon as possible and should be conducted in a spirit of mutual confidence.

Reuter.

Cause For Criticism.

Tokyo, Yesterday.

Broadly speaking, the main criticism of the report is that it is unduly confined to Manchuria and too little is devoted to China and the Far East generally. The main points criticised are the assertion that Japan's contention of her special position in Manchuria is incompatible with the Nine-Power Treaty, and the assertion that the blowing up of the railway on the night of September 18 last year was insufficient to justify the Japanese military action and that the action thereafter overstepped the bounds of self-defence.

Won't Stand Interference.

The Foreign Office spokesman emphasised that Japan would never permit the interference by a third party in settlement of the Manchurian dispute, nor agree to the suggestion of autonomy now that Manchuria is recognised. He said the report "contains much that is unfair to Japan," but nothing "unfair to China," and he declared the Government would strongly refute the contention that the Manchurian incident was a movement "instigated and supported by the Japanese General Staff."

In conclusion the spokesman intimated that Japan would confine her statement to refuting and rectifying mis-statements of fact and the mistaken ideas in the first eight chapters. — Reuter.

Expected Unfavourable Verdict.

Tokyo, Sept. 29.

Japan is braced to hear a verdict of "Guilty!" when she faces the delegates of most of the Occidental nations in the Assembly of the League of Nations, in effect a panel of judges to hear charges that Japan has committed unwarranted military aggressions, disturbed the peace and broken her treaties in Manchuria during the past year.

For this dramatic courtroom scene the nations have been setting the stage for the last twelve months. The Council and Assembly of the League both were in a session at Geneva, when, on the night of September 18, 1931, the shots were fired along the South Manchuria railway's tracks near Mukden that echoed ominously around the world. The Council began at once a long and largely futile opposition to the extension of the Japanese zone of occupation.

Forestalled Criticism.

The most practical upshot of these efforts was the dispatch of the Commission of Inquiry under the Earl of Lytton, a famous British administrator, to study the vexed Manchurian problem on the spot.

Fully expecting the judgment of this commission to be adverse to her, Japan has moved resolutely to forestall it by presenting to the world the accomplished fact of the separation of Manchuria from China and the establishment in the territories so separated of a government claiming complete independence and enjoying the full recognition of the Japanese government.

The Lytton commission came into being early in 1931 in execution of the resolution adopted by the League Council December 10, 1931. Travelling from Europe across America, they reached Japan February 29 and began their six months' investigation of the Oriental muddle "on the spot."

PARAGUAYAN WOMEN

"OFF THE SCENT."

No Powder Until Chaco Region Is Freed.

Paraguayan women, we read, have taken an oath that "until the Chaco is freed from the invader, they will use no rouge, powder, or perfume." We have heard before of a famous command to "keep your powder dry," and there was an incident in the last Punic War when the Carthaginian women "cut off their tresses to make bow-strings. It is a desperate device. Will the Paraguayans really fight all the harder because the girls they left behind them have made themselves as plain as possible?

The young men, perhaps, will be moved to fresh deeds of daring; but on the less up-to-date soldiers, who prefer "nice, old-fashioned, washable girls, it may have quite the opposite and undesired effect.

After it had bitten its master, Sapper Himbury, 40th Company, R.E., at Wellington Barracks, a small monkey was sent to Kennedy Town for observation yesterday.

Caution Robs Lytton Report Of Value.

The gloomy predictions that the Lytton Commission Report would provide little of constructive worth towards providing a solution of the Manchurian problem have been realized. Yet, disappointing as the Report is, it is of rather more value than the pessimists would have had it and there will be interesting discussion on the proposals contained in the voluminous document, even if the prospects of any acceptance of them is practically negligible. The reception of the report is scarcely likely to be complimentary to the compilers and neither of the two parties most concerned are satisfied. Japan has already expressed displeasure with the findings, Tokyo officials alleging prejudice, but it is shrewdly suspected that the comment is tempered with a certain amount of relief that the condemnation of Japan was not more pronounced or drastic. China will not view the Report with any enthusiasm and there will be forcible protest at the lack of any conclusion which would ensure sufficient redress to China. True, the Report recognizes that Manchuria is an integral part of China, but in the next paragraph Japan is placated with the statement that she held exceptional and unparalleled rights, "which so-called China's sovereign rights that conflict was inevitable." This finding will be disputed and the weakness of the Commissioners in "hedging" on this vital point will be deplored. The fact that Japan had no right to restrict China's sovereign rights seems to have been ignored, and Japan's deliberate aggression has been glossed over. The conflict was not of China's seeking, as indeed the Commission reveals later in commenting on China's unpreparedness in contrast with the swiftness and precision with which the Japanese plan was put into operation. The main criticism of the Lytton Report will be leveled at the caution of the wording and the lack of any definite expression of opinion. The present deduction is that the Lytton Report is a cautious, unimpassioned, and unimpassioned document, a party to any dispute.

may have possessed. The suggestion whereby the Three Eastern Provinces would be granted some form of autonomy, where in China would maintain a certain measure of control, is almost certain to be rejected by both sides. China will rightly demand the reason for necessity for any concession in a matter in which she is the aggrieved party, and Japan, unless forced to a more conciliatory attitude, either by world pressure or by China's boycott, will not surrender what she has taken. The die is cast for Japan and something more that what is contained in the Report will be needed to alter the Tokyo policy. The League has been impotent so far and if the Lytton Report is any indication of future action it is likely to remain so.

Brighter Braces.

Notoriously these are days when every patriotic citizen should take off his coat and get down to his work, and not less obviously days when he should brace himself firmly to withstand whatever strain the future may impose on him. Yet these two forms of effort seem incompatible. Stripped to his shirt sleeves, the patriotic citizen reveals his braces, and "a display of braces, even where normal laws of social behaviour are" like certain kinds of braces — "exceptionally elastic, is a crime against taste." A plea is made accordingly for a really important reform — for braces which shall delight every casual observer. Already there are varieties appealing, if not to the aesthetic eye of the artist, at least to the professional instinct of the engineer, inventions in which the stress is taken by a cunning arrangement of wheels and pulleys. Their defect is that when disaster overtakes them it is irreparable, at any rate in public. Anyone who in these distressing circumstances has tried, in a quite literal sense, to splice the mainbrace, has endured moments of suspense at once dubious and agonizing. It is, however, not for mechanical but for decorative improvement that one pleads. Let the honest worker display broad bands rich with artistic lines, and the spectators' hearts will leap up when they behold the rainbow on his shoulders. If he so chooses, he may weave into pleasant patterns the colours of his school, college, cricket club, and political party. Or he may prefer a more subtle symbolism, allowing the line of his braces to prefigure his own. A roseate hue will gratify his friends, and a pink, perhaps, will indicate any real or imaginary tude. One restriction alone will be needed: the use of braces for advertising purposes must be vetoed or placed under control by special Act of Parliament. When once the great movement for "brighter braces" has made headway, it can be only a matter of time before inventors devise means by which braces will be kept permanently in view. A glance at feminine evening dress will show that in this matter, as in so many others, women have led the way.

Agricultural Show Up To Standard

Poverty Of Farmer Is Not Apparent

LEEDS' EXCELLENT DISPLAY

London, September 5.

The losses and poverty of farmers have not adversely affected the best of the county agricultural shows, which remain very successful and very English. At Leeds recently the Yorkshire Society, which possesses a very skilful organizer, celebrated, in spite of rain, one of the best shows in its annals; and that is to say a very great deal. Such entries of cattle had not been seen since the war, and, to compare the small with the great, such entries of pit ponies and of goats had never been seen before.

The merriment of the Old English Fair was not absent. Hospitality enjoyed a generous fling. The Army entertained with its best horseman, and the stalls of those with things to sell were ranged in busy streets. Machinery, some of it strange and new, half encircled the Park; and varied between the hugest machinery for large-scale mechanisation and apparatus for the backyard poultryman. The urban public assembled in good numbers to shake hands with the rural. A day at the show was a liberal education for any student of economic or social history.

Compare this show with "the Royal" held outside Southampton the previous week. It was very nearly a fiasco. The attendance was the lowest in the records, in spite of glorious weather and a Royal visit. The classes were thinner than usual; and it was the general feeling of those who were present that the show was flat and dull. Business there was in as bad a way as pleasure and this loss to the ever small limit of overseas interest. The loss to the society must have been large.

What was the cause of the flatness and the absence of business? Many people asked the question on the ground, and the critics have been busy since. It is of so little importance to find a true answer, the stock was magnificent, though many classes were smaller than usual; and it was collected from a wide radius. Perhaps the most salient victories were registered by Mr. Marshall's thorthorns from West Scotland and Lord Daresbury's pigs from Lancashire, which all journeyed an immense distance. The machinery made a marvellous show in itself, and was perhaps the one thing that paid the society handsomely, for the charges for space are high. Neglect of Science.

Only in one respect was the show itself definitely inferior; it was totally neglected by the men of science, though their work is more important to-day than it has ever been and our agricultural research is among the best in the world. But the careless boycotting of the show by the men of science does not, of course, account for the failure. That is due to other causes, which perhaps include a wrong conception of what "the Royal" may be made. A good county show may succeed even in a tolerably remote rural spot. This has been abundantly proved in Cornwall (where husbandry flourishes in spite of the times), in Suffolk, which is at the heart of the depression, and in Yorkshire, where the East Riding has felt the full force of low prices. "The Royal" on the other hand, must appeal to an international and an urban population. It should be as good a mart even for horses as, say, the Dublin Horse Show, which never fails. Its publicity must, therefore, be world-wide.

Hidden Exhibitions.

This year, even on Southampton itself, you might easily have been unaware that a show was in being; you had the greatest difficulty, even after two days' experience, in finding out how to reach the ground at all. The most generally advised route left a mile's walk at the end of a long tram drive. The value of a Royal visit was destroyed by a high entrance fee, and fell as lamentably flat as most other things. Neither depression in the industry nor the apathy of the Southern population accounts for the failure. It was due to an unimaginative conception, first, of the problem of giving to the show individuality as well as intrinsic merit, second, of the possibilities of publicity at home and abroad; thirdly, of the organization of transport; and, lastly, of the function of a great national show.

"The Royal" should be a great national and international event, where specialists gathered from round the world for its stock and machinery, and the urban public for its picturesque gaiety. Those who feel this are greatly distressed at the degeneration from such an ideal.

THROWN OVER BANK.

Mr. A. McG. Mitchell, of the American Express, and Mr. H. W. Brown, of Dodwell & Co., Ltd., two well-known motor cyclists, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday on the Castle Peak Road, when the motorcycle on which they were riding came into head-on collision with a motor car, on one of the bends near the 16-mile stone. Mitchell and Brown were returning to Kowloon, with Mitchell at the controls. They were travelling towards Castle Peak, when the mishap occurred. It appears that everything happened in a short space of time, the drivers of both vehicles seeing each other simultaneously.

One of the car's fenders struck the handle of the cycle, and sent it crashing over a 15-foot bank. Mitchell fell with the machine, but Brown fell clear. Brown just managed to make his way up to the roadside before he collapsed. At this time, fortunately, Mr. B. S. Rogers, a strained nurse, came on the scene, and both rendered invaluable help to the injured men. The nurse ripped pieces of her garments into strips and bound their wounds.

Mr. Brown's motor both men to the Kowloon Hospital, where they were taken for treatment. Mitchell was taken to the same hospital, where he was treated for a fractured leg and a dislocated shoulder. Brown's injuries were less serious, and he was able to walk with the aid of a stick.

BRILLIANT APPROACHING TRIUMPHS

Diana Fishwick Wins Title By 5 And 4.

MISS BROWN'S GREAT FIGHT.

London, Saturday.
Miss Diana Fishwick owed her victory over Miss Bergh Brown in the final of the English Women's Golf Championship yesterday to her perfect approach.
It was a grueling test for the former champion and it was only on account of her breath-taking accuracy that she regained the title Miss Wanda Morgan took away from her last year. Both players were quite exhausted at the conclusion of the thirty-six holes.
The champion led at the end of the morning by 3 up, the following being the scores:
Miss Fishwick: 4 6 4 4 5 3 4 6 3=39
5 3 4 3 5 5 6 6 5=42
81
Miss Brown: 4 6 4 4 5 3 5 5 4=40
6 5 5 5 4 5 6 4 5=46
86
In the last round Miss Fishwick halved the first-hole and won the next five to place her eight up. Miss Brown was not, however, daunted, and fighting back in brilliant style, reduced the lead to only four at the thirteenth. The match, however, concluded on the fourteenth when Miss Fishwick secured a half.—Reuter.

NEW BILLIARDS RULE.

What Will Smith Thinks About It.

Willie Smith, the billiards professional and one of the most acute controversialists on the game, said that he did not know that the new rule appeared. He said the limitation of cannon requirements, which would be applied to cannon without a ball, was a very good idea. He said that the rule of the play must be the same as the rule of the game. He said that the rule of the game must be the same as the rule of the play. He said that the rule of the play must be the same as the rule of the game.

YANKEES CLINCH THE WORLD SERIES

Win Fourth Game By 13 To 6.

NO HOMERS REGISTERED.

Succeed Cardinals For World Supremacy.

Chicago, To-day.
The New York Yankees yesterday won the World Series Baseball Championship when they beat the Chicago Cubs, winners of the National League, by 13 to 6 in the fourth and final game of the 1932 series.
Guy Bush, Warneke, May, Tinning and B. Grimes pitched for the Cubs and G. Hartnett and Hemsley were their catchers. Allen, W. Moore and Pennock pitched for the winners and Bill Dickey was catcher.

Result was as follow:

Yankees	13	R. H. E.
Cubs	6	9 1

An extraordinary feature of the game was that no player clouted a four-bagger, the great Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig being quiet after their great batting display on Saturday.

B. Grimes was a member of the successful Cardinals team last year and is one of the greatest right-handed pitchers in baseball.

In the first game the Yankees triumphed by 12 to 6 and followed this up by a 5 to 2 win in the second encounter in New York.

In the third game which was played on Saturday the Yankees won by a 7-5 tally, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, their star swatsmen, both banging out two homers. Kiki Cuyler and G. Hartnett replied with four-baggers for the Cubs.

Last year the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Athletics for the title.

The second heat resulted as follows:—12th Bty. R.A. "B" boat; 12th Bty. R.A. "A" boat; 20th Bty. R.A. "A" boat.

Three teams competed in the Officers' Cup Race, this being won by the S.W.B., who passed the post an eighth of an hour ahead of the R.A. with the Argyle third.

Results were follow:—Chaplains' Cup (Final): 1. 12th Bty. R.A. "B" boat. 2. 24th Bty. R.A. 3. 12th Bty. R.A. "A" boat.

Officers' Cup: 1. S.W.B. 2. Royal Artillery. 3. Argyle.

General Sandilands, in presenting the prizes, congratulated the R.A. on winning the Chaplains' Cup for the fourth year in succession, but pointed out that the Lincolnshire Regiment would be giving them a good run next year, as they had done rather well at Gibraltar.

CITY OF PEKING SALVAGE

It is reported from Moji that the position of the ill-fated British s.s. City of Peking, which sank in the vicinity of Romo Island, South Korea, early in spring last year, has recently been ascertained. Mr. Yokota, expert of the Tokyo Salvage Company, has left Shimonoseki for Fusan to attempt to refloat the vessel.

Some interesting figures were given at the meeting of the Compagnie Auxiliaire de Navigation. In 1914 the tonnage of the whole world mercantile fleet was 49,089,522 tons. In 1931 its tonnage had increased to 70,131,040 tons, which is an increase of 43 per cent. Of that tonnage 17.8 per cent. was laid up at the beginning of 1932. The increase in French tonnage for the above period was 54 per cent., and the French tonnage laid up at the beginning of 1932 was 21.4 per cent.

CANTON'S OFFICERS GO NORTH

(From Our Own Correspondent).

Canton, To-day.
It is learned that about 70
aviators, trained for war flying, and 50 naval officers, formerly under command of General Chang
Wai-cheung and Admiral Chan Chak, have left for Shanghai in response to a summons from military headquarters in Nanking.

The acceptance of the two Cantonese leaders as allies of the Central Government seems to be indicated.

Mr. Hu Han-min, who was recently requested to join Nanking forces to negotiate a plan for National Salvation, has refused to go north, the memory of the detention of his person by order of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek being still fresh in his mind.

SEVEN SOLDIERS IN COURT.

Theft Charges
Remanded.

Seven soldiers of the South Wales Borderers made an appearance in the Central Magistracy this morning, implicated in the robbery of the two homes on the Peak and thefts from the War Memorial Nursing Home.
Their cases have been adjourned until to-morrow afternoon.
Pte. George Henry Pitcher has already been sent to prison for three months for his part in the robbery of Miss D. Bewley and Mr.
F. M. Ellis. The seven others are charged with receiving the stolen property or other thefts.

James Hayden and William Bevan are charged with the theft of a gold watch, an electric torch, two pairs of socks, two collars and one shirt from Cheung Yee-ching, a servant at the War Memorial Nursing Home. The value of the property was placed at $75.

Walter Weeks, William Hicks and Patrick Conway have been charged with receiving a brooch which belonged to Miss D. Bewley, of 362 the Peak.
James Haydon, Ivor Gordon and Idris Davis are charged with the theft of one wristlet, two brooches, one cigarette case, one imitation pearl necklace, two bracelets, four woollen sweaters, two suits, 90 cigars and a tin of 50 cigarettes, all the property of Miss D. Bewley.

Sub-Inspector Chester R. Woods, who is prosecuting, told Mr. Schofield that all but two pieces of the property had been recovered. They were valued at $75.

The men will remain in Military Custody until 2.30 p.m. to-morrow.

DOLLAR STEADY AND SILVER UNCHANGED.

The value of the local dollar remained steady, standing at 1/87d. this morning.

Silver prices showed no change, spot being given at 17 11/16 and forward at 17 13/16.

The London on New York cross rate was quoted at $-G38.45%, a rise of 1/2; the New York on London rate showing a decline of 1/4, standing at $-G38.45%.

Mr. D'Almada pointed out that the crux of the whole trouble was a debt owing by The Critic to the Shameen Printing Press. Cross-examined on the point, Major Cassell, replied that the debt was about $1,100, but most of it had been covered in a deed of assignment drawn up by the witness's solicitors, and to which the accused had agreed.

Referring to the term "do you in," allegedly used by the accused to Major Cassell, the witness said that the world wide meaning of the term was to murder. He had not heard of any other meanings attached to it.

Mr. D'Almada—You were not frightened?

Major Cassell—I am never frightened.

Mr. D'Almada—I am glad to hear the gallant Major say that.

Major Cassell intimated to his Worship that he held a certain influence over La Sala, who was once in the French Foreign Legion. A legionnaire, he said, had great respect for a field officer, and no respect at all for a non-commissioned officer.

Liked Legion Life.

Accused, the witness said, had referred to his being sick of civilian life, and wanted to return to the Legion where one could kill a man, and nothing was said about it.

Giving his evidence, Major Cassell, who was accommodated with a seat in the witness box, said that the Critic was started on June 18
this year. His partner was Mr.
Raymond O'Shea. For many weeks witness had been ill but he had contributed several articles.

On September 21, on the verandah of the French Bank Building just outside his office, witness discussed with the accused, La Sala, financial matters. La Sala became violent, and said "You go to hell."
After that an arrangement was made and a deed was executed which fully secured the Shameen Printing Press. After the settlement, Major Cassell went to the accused's office.

Witness continued—"He became extremely violent, jumped up from his chair, ran to the other side of the office, beat the wall with his fists, at the same time shouting that if I or anybody else interfered with him, he would do me or them in. He then broke down and sobbed."

Wanted To Kill.

Witness said that de La Sala went through the same performance on the afternoon of September 26. He was mad, "murderously mad." He gradually became less violent. Shortly before six o'clock that evening, he threw on his coat and announced that he was going out to get blind drunk, and that if anybody interfered with him afterwards he would kill them, as they did in the Foreign Legion. He was going to get somebody, preferably a policeman.
"With that," said the witness, dramatically, "he opened in a drawer in the desk, took out an automatic, showed it to me in the palm of his hand, and slipped it quickly into his pocket. It was a small calibre automatic. He left the office and I returned to mine."

Cross-examined searchingly by Mr. D'Almada, Major Cassell said that he considered the accused was criminally insane.

Replying further, witness said that he (witness) and Mr. O'Shea conceived the idea of starting a weekly paper.

Mr. D'Almada—What capital did you have?—About $950 or $1,000;
I believe. I did not put in a cent myself.

The paper was printed in Canton, these arrangements being left to his partner, Mr. O'Shea.

Names Not Disclosed.

Mr. D'Almada—Did you at any time or in any of your editions of the Critic, disclose your name or that of Mr. O'Shea as editor or proprietor?—No.

Why not?—I don't know.

Pressed for an answer, the witness said—"I simply can't answer.
I don't know. Why should we?"

Asked as to why the paper had not been registered here, Major Cassell replied that neither he and Mr. O'Shea knew about the necessity of registration. He (witness) had seen Mr. E. H. P. Lang (Registrar) who had been very kind, and said that as he did not know, he thought it would be better for them to find other ways of printing the paper, or pay a fee of $3,000.

Referring to a contract between the China Literary Agency, local agents for the Critic, Major Cassell said that Mr. O'Shea entered into it personally. Witness entered into partnership verbally.

Asked for a reason as to the violence of La Sala, Major Cassell, said he was unable to give one, except that La Sala had said, he hated his position as a glorified shroff.

Mr. D'Almada, suggested to witness that the story of the producing of the revolver was a figment of his imagination.

Major Cassell—It is not. I am on oath. The revolver was naked.
The hearing was adjourned to Thursday at 2.30 p.m.

League Reports Need Of Money

Member Nations Have Not Paid Up Accounts.

Geneva, To-day.

The League of Nations is in a bad way financially, it was revealed to-day with the publication of the proceedings of recent secret sessions of the council, which adjourned two days ago.

Reporting that only 64 per cent.
of the 1932 levies on member nations had been received on September 19, Carl Hambro, of Norway, a member of the supervisory committee, asked that the true situation be disclosed at the forthcoming meeting of the assembly and to all members.

A number of Latin-American nations were shown to be in arrears, but Germany was the only
